Fixed Index Annuities

By: Kelly George

Sales Manager for Ohio CU Financial Services

What are fixed index annuities?

A fixed index annuity is a kind of deferred annuity: a guaranteed contract with the insurance company designed to accumulate savings over time and provide income in the future. After the accumulation period, you can typically choose to receive a lump sum, spread payments over a fixed number of years, or receive income for the rest of your life.

Unlike some annuities that expose you to market risk, fixed index annuities protect your principal until you decide to take guaranteed income in retirement while offering tax advantages, market growth potential, and a floor to protect against losses. It's tied to an underlying market index, so when the index rises, so do your gains up to the limit outlined in your contract. But it's important to know that your gains won't match the index's total performance due to fees, rate caps, spreads, and participation rates. On the other hand, if the index falls, your principal is protected from losses.

Advantages and Disadvantage of Fixed Index Annuities

Two major advantages to consider are growth potential of your investment and downside risk protection. Annuities offer healthy growth with the structure of their return on investment. Protection of your investment is achieved several ways. Taxes are deferred until you withdraw and at that time you will likely be in a lower tax bracket. You have an option for principle protection for your lifetime. Also, the issuing insurance company provides guarantees for your investment based on their claims-paying ability.

Disadvantages include risk and costs. Growth is anticipated but not guaranteed and your investment is not FDIC/NCUA insured so it may lose value. Fees, caps, spreads and other costs are paid out of your returns. A surrender penalty (plus applicable taxes) is required if you withdraw your funds before age 59 ½.

Is a fixed index annuity suitable for your financial portfolio?

When creating a financial plan, there is no one best product. But some products can be a better fit to help meet your retirement goals, whether you are experienced or just getting started.

This is just a summary of indexed annuities. If you would like to discuss whether an index annuity is suitable for your retirement plan, please request more information through ohiocufinancialservices.com.

Ask Bill

Bill Lebus | Loan Zone Manager/VP

Q: I have $5,000 worth of credit card debt that I'm currently paying 21.49% on and I can only afford to make the minimum payment. I saw you are offering a 5.99% balance transfer for 12 months. I know the rate is lower but how does this work to pay off such a large amount for my situation?

A: A credit card balance transfer is a financial product that charges a fee to offer you a time period of a lower interest rate to pay off a large balance. It is important to know the pros and cons before making a transfer to be sure it is the right choice for you.

Balance Transfer Pros Consolidated Payments

You may be able to combine multiple credit card balances (especially store cards) by transferring them to one balance transfer card. Once you consolidate your credit card debt onto one card, you can focus on one payment with one due date, instead of making several payment each month and having to keep track of various due dates. This can make it easier to manage your payments

Save Money on Interest

A major benefit of doing a balance transfer is the potential to save money on interest. It's common to see credit cards with APR's of 28% or higher. Some balance transfer cards come with an introductory APR for a set amount of time. That way, the money you pay toward your debt is not just getting eaten up by interest but pays down more of your principal balance. You may want to have a Banker calculate a 12 month amortization for you to pay off the entire balance prior to the promotion ending.

Balance Transfer Cons Balance Transfer Fee

Most good things aren't free and that includes balance transfers. Many balance transfer cards will charge a fee of 3% to 8%. OC Federal currently charges 3% for our balance transfer promotion.* Using your $5,000 example, a 3% fee would be $150 to complete the transaction. Consider that added cost before you transfer your balance to make sure you are still saving money.

Temptation to Spend with Lower Interest

If you are looking to do a balance transfer, you're likely hoping to pay off debt and save money on interest. But you may need to address the root issue of overspending in the first place. Having a new card with lower interest can be a tempting way to continue the credit card cycle. Consider closing the credit cards that you transferred. Make an appointment with a Banker and discuss how to manage your money for the long run to include savings and budgeting.

Credit Score Requirements

In order to get approved for a balance transfer credit card, you typically need good credit scores to qualify. Your credit scores will also help determine if you are approved for the best APR.

Rate After the Promotional Period

Since you can only make minimum payments, consider the interest rate after the promotion ends, usually 12 months. Many cards will charge interest on the entire $5,000 balance if it is not paid off within the 12 months and may charge interest even higher than the 21.49% you are paying now. OC Federal currently has current standard rates between 10.99% and 17.99% so a standard rate would still benefit you.

If you would like to discuss further and have a Loan Officer run the numbers, call the Loan Zone at (216) 478-0067. Our experienced Loan Officers can help you decide if a balance transfer is right for you. We are here to help you save money on your loans and credit cards.

*APR = Annual Percentage Rate. Subject to creditworthiness, OC Federal Credit Union lending policies, and membership eligibility. The APR on all other transactions and balances on your account will remain at the applicable rate in accordance with your credit card agreement. Other fees may apply. The maximum APR is 17.99%. The interest rate on qualifying balance transfers will remain 5.99% APR unless the account becomes delinquent and/or over the limit. All payments will be applied to the highest interest rate first. Existing OC Federal Credit Union credit card/loan balances are not eligible for the promo rate. All balance transfers made during the promotional period will be subject to a fee of 3.00% of the transferred amount. Minimum balance transfer amount of $500.00. All promotions are subject to the purchase of one $5.00 membership share required to be maintained in your share savings account. Annual Percentage Rates (APR) range from 10.99% to 17.99%; and subject to change without notice. APR is variable and based on your creditworthiness. Standard balance transfers will not have a fee. Tech Support Scams

Read the full article from the FTC at www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/how-spot-avoid-and-report-tech-support-scams.

The Federal Trade Commission offers great advice on how to spot and avoid Tech Support Scams.

This scam involves contacting you to make you believe you have a serious problem with your computer and that they are an expert that can help you fix it. They will often ask you to wire money, put money on gift cards or use an app that transfers money because these can be charges that are harder to cancel or reverse.

How Scammers Contact You

Phone Calls

Tech support scammers will often call you and say they are from a large, reputable company. They will pretend they have found a problem with your computer and will ask you to let them remote in to your computer and run a test. Then they will try to get you to pay for a problem that doesn't exist. They may say they are from a computer security company that you have a subscription from.

RED FLAG: Your computer is a storehouse of personal and sensitive information. It should always be protected from people you don't know. Never trust someone calling you. Think about it: how would they know what is on your computer if they are on a telephone? Do not be afraid to just hang up the phone.

Pop-Up Warnings When You are Online

You may be searching for a great restaurant online and a pop-up jumps on your computer screen and says "Threat Detected - Suspicious activity detected on your computer. Call a live technician now. 1-800-709-5348 (Toll Free)" This is a scam. If you are concerned and aren't sure how to close the pop-up, simply close out the browser window and turn off your computer.

RED FLAG: Real security warnings on your computer from your virus protection software will never ask you to call a phone number. You can always power down your computer and go to your trusted computer support to ask if you should have any concerns.

Online Ads and Listings

Scammers try to get their listings to show when you search for tech support. The goal is to have you call them instead of reputable support when you have a problem. If you are looking for support, ask trusted family and friends and go to a company you trust.

If you think there may be problem with your computer, update your installed security software and run a scan. If you need further support, usually the store where you purchased the computer can give you technical support in person.
